

Aggies Commit: Reflections on Student Leadership
Division of Student Affairs
2016-2017

Purpose of the Project

This division-wide initiative is sponsored through the DSA Committee on Student Learning (formerly the Student Leader Learning Outcomes project [SLLO]). The purpose of the project is to take a snapshot of co-curricular student learning across the Division, to prepare students to be lifelong learners, to provide resources for student organization advisors to help students reflect on their learning, and to support the Texas A&M Quality Enhancement Plan.

Use of Results

The results from this year-long project will be used to develop a culture of student learning in the Division of Student Affairs through continued advisor development and assessment. In addition, results will be used to provide information to stakeholders (DSA, QEP, advisors) through presentations and/or publications.

Project Structure

Student organization advisors can sign up to be part of this project. Advisors involved with the project will be expected to attend a short training on September 12 from 12:00 – 1:30 (lunch provided). There will be two times during both the fall and spring semesters that advisors will receive the reflection surveys for their student leadership. The advisor will administer the surveys in October and November in the fall and before spring and after spring break during the spring semester. After each cycle of administration, the completed forms will be returned to Student Life Studies. Each reflection survey will include a few demographic questions and the reflection prompt(s).

What is the Time Commitment?

The time commitment for advisors will be minimal and involves:

- Attend the training on September 12, 2016.
- Four times during the 2016-2017 (October, November, before and after spring break) allow time on the student organization agenda to administer the reflection surveys. Approximately 10 minutes per time.
- Return the reflection surveys to Student Life Studies by the end of the month in which they were administered.

Who Can Be Involved with this Project?

Student leaders in any student organization could be involved in this project. We hope advisors who advise a student organization as part of their job description will sign up to participate.

How Do I Sign Up?

Advisors who would like to participate in the Aggies Commit: Reflections on Student Leadership project should contact Kelly Cox (kcox@tamu.edu) with the name of their student organization(s) and how many students would be involved.
